INTRODUCTION

Share chapter 1 with your committee's members so they are fully aware of their responsibilities.

Congratulations on your appointment as committee chair. This manual will help you set goals and understand your role in increasing club membership. It includes policy and procedures that all clubs should follow, as well as ideas that you may find useful.

The job description on page 1 summarizes your responsibilities. You'll learn more at your district training assembly, where you can connect and exchange ideas with other club and district leaders. Review the discussion questions on pages 16-17 before attending.

Questions?

If you have questions about your role, contact other leaders you work with, such as your assistant governor or a past membership committee chair. Your Club and District Support representative is also available to help. We offer support in eight languages at Rotary.org and through our staff at our headquarters and international offices.

Send questions about this manual or any Rotary training materials to learn@rotary.org.

CHAPTER 1

COMMITTEE ROLE AND RESPONSIBILITIES

The role of the club membership committee is to actively attract and engage members. Having engaged and active club members makes it possible for your club to serve communities at home and around the world. It is members who support Rotary's work and who develop into leaders.

YOUR CLUB'S MEMBERS

Make sure your club reflects the diverse professions and cultures of your community. Not only will a diverse club attract potential candidates, it will also provide the skills and experience your club needs to make a positive change in your community.

ATTRACTING NEW MEMBERS

Attracting new members should start with Rotary alumni in your area. Our program alumni are powerful advocates for Rotary, potential members and donors, and additional resources for service. Develop an action plan for keeping alumni connected to your club as members, donors, or resources.

Club officers can generate a report of names, program details, and contact information for all former Rotary program participants associated with their district on My Rotary. Encourage alumni to register with My Rotary to keep their information up-to-date.

In addition to maintaining contact with alumni, your club's members should talk to business and community leaders, young professionals, recent retirees, and women in your community who might be a good fit for your club. Find more ideas in Strengthening Your Membership: Creating Your Membership Development Plan.

RETAINING CURRENT MEMBERS

Keeping members should be a top priority for your whole club, but especially your committee. Find ways to improve the member experience by regularly asking members about their interests and what they would like the club to do. Make sure members are informed, involved, and recognized for their contributions. Track trends in project participation and engagement, length of membership, social activity, and contributions to The Rotary Foundation to reveal concerns that may need to be addressed.

Whether members decide to stay or go is affected by the club experience, which is shaped by all members. Work with your committee to develop goals and a detailed action plan for achieving them. Then get your members on board and let them know what they can do to improve the club experience. Although your committee leads the club's membership efforts, recruiting is the responsibility of each member. Encourage all members to ask friends, family, business associates, and other community members to join leaders to exchange ideas and take action.

STEPS TO RECRUITING AND RETAINING A MEMBER

The process for cultivating a Rotary club member often includes the following stages:

Identify. Identify members of your community who are a good fit for your club.

Use the classification and membership diversity assessment in Member Assessment Tools to determine how well your club represents the professional diversity of your community. Then target recruiting efforts to help your club better represent the professional community.

Introduce. Introduce prospective members to Rotary by telling them about:

- Your experience as a member
- Why you joined and why you've stayed
- Your club, its projects and activities, and its impact in your community
- Rotary and our commitment to eradicating polio
- How they can get in involved in club activities

Enthusiastic, engaged members are more likely to attract prospective members who will become involved and active themselves. Compile a club brochure that can be presented to visitors. You can find customizable templates in the Brand Center.

Before inviting a prospective member to join, invite him or her to attend your club meeting as a guest to get a feel for what you do and what it is like to be a member. If the prospective member continues to show interest and is deemed to be a good fit, proceed to the invitation.

Earn sponsor pins by recruiting new members to your club. Learn more in the New Member Sponsor Recognition Program brochure.

Invite. When you invite a prospective member to join, make it personal. Learn the person's interests and expertise and suggest activities and projects that might interest him or her. Finally, submit the proposal to your club's board of directors, along with reasons for proposing the candidate.

Induct. Do something special when new members join. Hold an induction ceremony or a social gathering and invite family members to attend. For a sample induction ceremony program, refer to New Member Orientation: A How-to Guide for Clubs. During the event, ask new members to talk briefly about themselves, their work, and their families. Make sure that all club members personally introduce themselves to each new member. You could give new members the following items:

- Rotary pin
- Membership card
- Club information (for example, a club brochure)
- Name badge
- District directory
- The Rotarian or a Rotary regional magazine

Work with your club administration committee to see that the new member and sponsor are recognized on your club's website and newsletter.

Inform and orient. Tell new members about your club and Rotary, including:

- How to get involved in the club's activities and projects
- Your club's culture
- What to expect at meetings
- How to create a My Rotary account on Rotary.org

Consider scheduling a new-member orientation program that extends over several sessions. See New Member Orientation: A How-to Guide for Clubs.

Involve. An involved member will feel a part of the club and will make Rotary a priority in his or her life. Make sure all club members are involved somehow. Consider these suggestions for involving new members:

- Assign new members to a committee or give them a role at club meetings.
- Have a new member serve as a delegate to the district conference. Some clubs assist the new member by paying part or all of the registration fee and costs of the conference.
- Have all club members who join during the same Rotary year work together on a project.
- Encourage new members to attend a Rotary International Convention or host visiting Rotarians for a meal or other activity.

- Ask new members to find two or three potential members within their peer group. When new members promote Rotary to their friends, they become more enthusiastic themselves.

Consider the best ways to involve members without overwhelming them with too many assignments.

Educate. Members who feel informed and involved are more likely to stay actively engaged. Keep members aware of Rotary news and updates on club and district initiatives. For example:

- Hold club assemblies to chat about what members like about the club and what they want to change.
- Have a multiclub social with a presentation on a Rotary topic to continue new member education. Find courses on a variety of Rotary topics in the Learning Center.
- Contact regional leaders — your Rotary coordinator, Rotary public image coordinator, regional Rotary Foundation coordinator, and endowment/major gifts adviser — and invite them to talk to your club about regional Rotary initiatives.
- Get a group of members together to participate in webinars held by Rotary International. Register for upcoming webinars or listen to recorded webinars at www.rotary.org/webinars.
- Have your club trainer give newer members leadership training to develop potential leaders and for their personal development. Use Leadership Development: Your Guide to Starting a Program.

For more ideas, see Strengthening Your Membership: Creating Your Membership Development Plan. Use your club and district websites, social media sites, weekly meetings and emails, and club newsletters to share information from your district governor or Rotary International.

Rotary publications like The Rotarian or Rotary regional magazines are also excellent continuing education tools. Encourage members to visit Rotary.org and to connect with Rotary’s social media pages to stay current on events and resources.

DIVERSITY

Your club’s membership should reflect your community in terms of profession, age, gender, and ethnicity. Survey club members on their professions, gender, and ethnicity and compare the information to that of your community. Being diverse provides a club with a wider range of experience and knowledge that is useful for its service efforts. Membership diversity can also make it easier to attract prospective members.

Rotary policy prohibits limitations on membership in Rotary clubs based on gender, race, color, creed, national origin, or sexual orientation. See RI Bylaws, Article 4.070.

CLUB IMAGE

A club's image is directly related to its ability to attract new members. Promote your club's values and the benefits you provide your members, and communicate those values to prospective members. With consistent public image efforts, people will look for local clubs and be more inclined to accept invitations to join. Work with the public relations committee to coordinate public image efforts.

A vibrant club image will not serve you well, however, if the club experience doesn't match what you've promoted. Make sure that your club meetings live up to the expectations you've set. Also, each activity that your members participate in outside of Rotary is an opportunity to attract new members and promote your club's culture. Remind your members that they represent your club, so everything they do contributes to the club's image.

Make sure your club website is current and appealing and your contact information is easy to find. State your club's projects and goals prominently, and include details about club meetings and events. You can download graphics and web banners to embed on your club website from Rotary's Brand Center. Use social networking sites, digital audio, streaming video, podcasts, and blogs to attract new members. If you don't have marketing, public relations, and web technology professionals in your club, target them in your membership recruitment efforts.

SPONSORING NEW CLUBS

New clubs are often started because members of a club want to meet at a different time or do other kinds of activities. Prospective members also have work and family commitments, as well as different areas of interest that might require other options for meeting schedules.

Let your district governor and district extension committee know if you feel there are enough interested people to support a new Rotary club in your community. If your club sponsors a new Rotary club, your committee can:

- Help establish the new club
- Consult on the new club's programs and projects
- Serve as liaison with the district governor during the club's first year
- Mentor the new club for at least one year after its charter date

Requirements for sponsoring new Rotary clubs include:

- Agreeing to mentor the new club for at least one year
- Being in good financial standing with Rotary International
- Having at least 25 active members
- Carrying out a well-rounded service program

For more information on opportunities to sponsor new Rotary clubs in your area, contact your district governor, district membership committee, or district extension committee.

CLUB MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE CHAIR

You're the chair of your club membership committee. What happens next? Meet with the outgoing committee chair, review your club's bylaws and strategic plan, and start thinking about who else will be on your committee. You can also start planning how you will run your committee. In addition to becoming an expert on your committee's subject area, you will be managing your committee members.

YOUR COMMITTEE

In many clubs, members serve on a committee for three years, so it's likely that some current committee members will continue into your term. If you need to fill any openings on the committee, work with the president-elect to find someone who:

- Has professional experience in recruiting, marketing, or sales
- Knows Rotary well
- Is outgoing and sociable

As chair, you'll delegate tasks, so you'll need to determine how best to use the skills and interests of your committee members. You can prepare them by:

- Informing them of the committee's ongoing activities and goals
- Pairing new committee members with more experienced ones
- Encouraging them to communicate with counterparts in other clubs
- Notifying them of district activities and meetings
- Sharing resources

Collaborate with your club's other committees to maximize your club's impact. These conversations should be ongoing and can take place at your club's board meetings.

SETTING GOALS

As chair you make sure the committee sets and achieves annual goals that support the club's strategic plan. You'll set goals with your incoming president and other club leaders at the district training assembly. The president or secretary can enter the goals in Rotary Club Central.

EFFECTIVE GOALS

Be sure that the annual goals reflect committee capabilities and club interests. Goals should be shared, measurable, challenging, achievable, and time-specific. For example: Our club will have 10 percent more female members by the end of the year.

ACTION PLAN

Work with your committee to develop an action plan, or a series of smaller goals or steps needed to achieve each goal. For each step:

- Set a deadline
- Determine who's responsible for implementing it
- Decide how you'll measure progress and success
- Consider which resources you have and get the ones you need

Regularly assess your progress and adjust your goals if necessary.

MOTIVATION

Part of your role as chair is keeping your committee members motivated. Remember that your committee members are volunteers. Common motivators include:

- Assurance that the goal will be beneficial
- Belief that the goal is achievable and will be successful
- Opportunities for fellowship and networking
- Assignments that use each member's expertise
- Making sure members enjoy their committee work

BUDGET

Before 1 July, work with the outgoing committee chair and the club treasurer to determine what funds your committee will need and see that these funds are included in the club's budget. Be sure to include any planned fundraising activities.

Oversee committee funds, transactions, and reports, and be aware of the financial condition of your committee's budget at all times. If you meet regularly with your club's treasurer, you'll be able to take action if issues arise.

- Rotary newsletters — Electronic newsletters about specific Rotary-related topics, such as membership, polio eradication, public relations, and The Rotary Foundation

DISTRICT TRAINING ASSEMBLY DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

When considering these questions, talk to outgoing and incoming club leaders to share ideas.

What are the responsibilities of the club membership committee, and what are your responsibilities as chair?

How will your committee support the club's strategic plan?

How can the club membership committee attract new members?

How can the club membership committee keep members engaged?

How do you ensure that new members are informed and included?

What will you delegate to committee members, and how will you support them?
